At about this date, a letter was written by him to a lady, whom, as it appears, he had not met since the time when, in his early youth, he lived in Providence. As in it, in answer to a request of his correspondent, he gives some account of his life, it is interesting as the only approach to autobiography which has been found. It is as follows: New York, April 30th, 1860. The receipt of your most welcome and kind letter of the 23d inst. has given me great pleasure. That brief acquaintance of our early years to which you so kindly allude, I have always considered one of the brightest periods of my life;...
