Subject: Acid mine drainage -- Colorado -- Alamosa River Watershed. Excerpt: . . . described in a previous section of this report. In addi-boxplots, which show the variation around the median value of the data. An example of a boxplot is given in tion, the percentage of contribution of metal load from figure 4. the upstream main-stem site to the closest downstream main-stem site was calculated in the same manner. This provides a percentage of contribution of the metal Alamosa River Upstream from Wightman load that can be attributed to the Alamosa River Fork ( Exposure Area 3a ) upstream from the exposure areas. The percentage of contribution of metal loads determined in this manner Sources of metals to the Alamosa River provides an estimate of the contribution of metals from upstream from Wightman Fork, EA3a, were deter- a particular area. In some instances, the percentage of mined for each flow period: base flow, early snowmelt, contribution...
