After reducing the lower jaw, it will be sufficient to pass a strap under the jaw, and to pin the ends of it together at the top of the head, so as to prevent the patient from opening his mouth wide. After reducing the dislocated humerus, let the elbow be brought inwards and forwards, and laid upon the chest at the outer side of the mamma. Then let a thick and hard compress be laid on at the inner side of the acromion, and supported by a few turns of a spica bandage; after which the sleeve should be pinned to a waistcoat, and the fore-arm hung in a sling or scarf, and after reducing the dislocated elbow, and bending the fore-arm to a right angle with the humerus, a thick and...
